

The 6th Annual Marriage, the Family, and the Social Sciences Seminar
Sponsored by the Witherspoon Institute

Does True Love Wait?

Marriage, Cohabitation, and Relationships among Young Adults Today

An intensive summer seminar for PhD students and recent PhD graduates in sociology, psychology, family studies, and economics

June 20–23, 2012
At Princeton University

The age at first marriage in the United States keeps rising. What are the cultural and economic factors driving delays in marriage? What are the implications of this delay for the quality and stability of marriage among today's adults? How does later marriage affect the emotional, social, and economic well-being of young adults? What are the keys to marital success for adults who marry in their twenties? This Princeton seminar will feature lectures and workshops on these topics by scholars of the social science in this field.

Information on applying is available at www.winst.org/mfss.html

Faculty

W. Bradford Wilcox (UVa.)
Jason Carroll (BYU)
Kay Hymowitz (Manhattan Institute)
Maria Kefalas (St. Joseph U.)
Lisa Neff (UT-Austin)
Mark Regnerus (UT-Austin)
Sharon Sassler (Cornell)
Scott Stanley (Denver)

Application Deadline: March 30, 2012

Questions may be e-mailed to John Doherty at jdoherly@winst.org